

Growing Today, Leading Tomorrow is an exciting new community investment program offered by Corteva Agriscience™, Agriculture Division of DowDuPont™. This program is focused on providing financial support to agricultural education, farm safety and food security initiatives for youth in rural communities across Canada.

At Corteva Agriscience™, we have a proud history of giving back to agriculture with grants that have had a positive impact on countless people and communities. Through two of our previous community investment programs – the Funding Initiative for Rural Emergencies (2013-2015) and the Full Belly! Full Mind! program (2016-2017) – we have provided over $500,000 to rural communities across Canada.

For more information about how we've given back to rural communities across Canada, visit www.pioneer.com/Canada.

Why Growing Today, Leading Tomorrow

- Corteva Agriscience™ is proud to support educational programs that help create awareness about agriculture and develop competent, assertive, agricultural leadership in young minds.
- Farming can be a hazardous profession, with children becoming injured far too frequently. We want to increase awareness of dangers on the farm and help keep our children safe by supporting farm safety programs.
- Corteva Agriscience™ understands the importance of nutrition for the health and well-being of children in the communities where we operate. That's why we support organizations focused on improving child nutrition to help the leaders of tomorrow get off to a great start today.

Application criteria and process

All applications for funding should be for projects that support youth in rural communities and focus on one of the following areas: agricultural educational programs, farm safety initiatives and programming, food security initiatives.

For more information or to request an application package, please contact your local sales representative or email us at growingtoday@pioneer.com.

